You can livestream the eclipse on August 21, but that doesn't compare to seeing it in real life. A website (whose URL features the moon and sun emoji 🌚 🌞) helps you plan out your solar eclipse day by telling you about official solar eclipse events near you and eclipse conditions, like the weather, how long you'll be able to see the eclipse, and the times of each phase of the eclipse. To get started, just plug in your city on the website's homepage.

Hmm, http://xn—6g8hia.ws/ (http://xn--6g8hia.ws/) as a URL may have seemed like a good idea, especially if it has emoji in it as you claim, but looking at it just sets off warning sirens in my head that I'm about to be scammed, hacked, or get a virus.
